

Lunch Seminar with professor Andrew Robertson

Implied contract terms in common law

Monday 19 December 2016, 11.30-13.30

The Faculty of Law, Lilla Gråbrödersgatan 3C, "Tryckeriet",
The conference room, 4th floor

On December 19th 2016 at 11:30 – 13:30 (sharp) The Centre for Business Law at the University of Lund invites you to a lunch seminar, which will be held in English, with professor Andrew Robertson, Melbourne Law School. The seminar will take place in the conference room at the 4th floor in "Tryckeriet".

Professor Robertson is an internationally leading researcher in the fields of civil law and property law, who has previously been a visiting professor at institutions such as the University of British Columbia and the National University of Singapore. His research covers the law of obligations, contract law and tort law, as well as theoretical and comparative analyses. Andrew Robertson is also the initiator and organizer of the Obligations Conferences series, whose 8th edition will take place at the Melbourne Law School in June 2018 on the theme of "Form and Substance in the Law of Obligations".

At the seminar professor Robertson will discuss the topic of understanding implied contract terms in common law. Professor Robertson has published two articles in aforementioned topic and these articles will be distributed via mail to whom which register their interest in participating in the seminar.

The seminar is free to attend, but registration is required. Please register as soon as possible, however no later than 15 December 2016 by e-mailing mattias.liljebäck@jur.lu.se

Refreshments will be served

With kind regards,
